“You decide how fast you want to pick up and deliver packages. How many times will you make mistakes before being fired? The choice is yours.” A delivery truck driver can be hired quickly to deliver packages. But why does the driver have to deliver the packages and not just pick them up? Unfortunately, the delivery company doesn't have any cash. Even the most reliable drivers are asked to make the delivery. You can try to convince the driver that it's a “big deal” to deliver a package, but it's going to be your fault if the client decides to fire you. Will the client be pleased with your work? If you're not on time and the client is grumpy, your reputation will diminish. A delivery truck driver can be hired quickly to deliver packages. What's new in BULLETPROUNDS:

is really the only choice these days outside of a revival/sequel, and it's a happy one. The game had the most backstory that I'd ever experienced in console games, in the original main hub's storytelling where we'd learn the tales of many of the amazing characters we'd encounter. We'd learn about Champa's life in Fatria, the life of Pangraz, Jynix, and then Alisa's life and how R-11 Vodetox messed things up. They could have done more storytelling, and I didn't see it all the way through, but I'm thankful that I got to experience the most, and most told story of Rebirth, with the Father and Mother with Alisa. So many games could just be a direct sequel but instead they use it to explore characters we'd normally see in the background or just see on social media. Even playing the game the day after it was released, a great number of backstories aren't connected either - it'd be cool if they explored everyone. Also, the diversity of cultures and species in Rebirth, there are so many. The Father and Mother was really the best expansion pack ever released for Metroid. I also just want to highlight the level layout and experiences. I'm very happy to see the game's layout is great, and with Rogues becoming the default playable character, I really love the emphasis on playability. Before, encountering enemies and acquiring a Power Suit was really the focus of the levels, and you could really only save and fight the power grunts. It was great, and now the emphasis is really on battling and killing them off, or if you do the latter, flushing them off with the correct maneuvering skills. It's rewarding again. Same with grabbing the Mothership and grabbing Power Suits, but now it's all about quick travelling from the Mothership to the Statue of Unity instead of having to open the series' new Zero Suit. Or playing as the Zero Suit Fighter. And not just hitting H-WINGS and jacking into space and blasting off. No, I LOVE the level layout, it's great. I really enjoy everything that I'm playing. Although the voice acting seems lacking. If the trailer's voice acting is anything to go by,

Ahlman Arcade 2018 is a collection of games made by the game industry students at Ahlman Institute. All games were made during our ten month long school year as a joint effort between the programmers and graphic designers. The time spent developing each game varied, with some being made in a week or so and others taking over ten weeks to develop. Our games have a diverse selection of different genres, ranging from colorful platformers and collect-a-thons to sport games, horror mysteries, racing games and bullet hell manias. They can be found on the consoles and cabinets scattered about inside the Ahlman Arcade itself, so try to find and play them all! In the Ahlman Arcade you can... Behold the Main Project Room, where we've placed our most valued and treasured game projects Take in the nostalgia in the Gamer Room or the Arcade Hall, and play games on old-school consoles and cabinets Visit the Museum of Graphics, and have a look at the artwork our graphic designers have made Find the hidden basement, and see what horrors await within... In the Main Project Room you can... Race against the clock or your friends in Deadline (local split-screen multiplayer only) Look out for birds and boulders in the 3D bullet hell adventure Dragon's Fodder Delve deep into the gruesome horror story of Going Home... In the Gamer Room you can... Help Doctor Nestor save or destroy the last of animal-kind in the post-apocalyptic world of Dr. Nestor's Ark Enjoy a baseball-themed, classic 2D platformer with BallCat's Homerun Jump on leaves and stars, and see how high you can go in Corgi Jumper Collect all the berries in the low-poly scenery of Fox's Berry Adventure Escape your fate as a child's toy and sneak around the patrolling robots in Ungifted Bunny In the Arcade Hall you can... Have a Disc Golf Experience unlike ever before (VR version published separately) Join the grumpy Mr. Potato in the quest to save your spuds in Mr. Potato Runner Play a nerve-wracking game of cat-and-mouse in the bullet hell mania Top Hat Cat Avoid barrels, trees, tables and bears as you run in Ms Woman Runner Test your dodging skills in the spooky bullet hell Shadow Glider Thanks to our mentor Risto Kosken
