SQL aggregate functions include: Average function which gives the average of a particular column in a table. Count function which gives the number of rows that occur in the table. Count function for rows matching a specified condition. Min function which gives the minimum value of a column in a table. Sum function which gives the sum of a column in a table. Sum function for rows matching a specified condition. The Count, Min and Sum functions can return null. You can find more about the various aggregate functions in the documents section of the MySQL website. SQL aggregate functions are related to records and rows, i.e. information that can be counted and grouped. The following are the steps you can take when performing queries on aggregate data: Create a view or materialized view from the table. If you create a materialized view, enable the refresh of the refresh option. Create a query using the view you created. Find out the number of records in each row in the view. Find the minimum value of any column in the view. Count the number of rows in each row in the view. Count the number of rows in the view. Count the number of rows in the view. Count the number of rows in each row in the view. Count the number of rows in the view. Find the sum of any column in the view. Find the sum of any column in the view. parse the html response data in d3 I am fetching the HTML response data from URL and trying to parse. I used the d3.json method for it. Parsing the data in d3.json seems to be hard work. The response data is complicated and like JSON format. It has a JSON object and an array of JSON object. JSON object has the key and value pair of which I want to get a response into a javascript array. I am able to get the response of JSON object, but not able to parse the array. document.addEventListener('load', function() { d3.json('', function(error,root) { console.log(root); }); }, false); The console.log shows the following { __type: "GeckodriverException", name: "Mixed Content: The page at '' was loaded over HTTPS, but requested an insecure XMLHttpRequest endpoint ''. This request has been blocked; the content must be served over HTTPS." } I need the response in JS array. I tried like "Object.keys(x).forEach(function(k){if(k.indexOf("[value]")){...}}", but it didn't work. { "__type": "GeckodriverException", "name": "Mixed Content: The page at '' was loaded over HTTPS, but requested an insecure XMLHttpRequest endpoint ''. This request has been blocked; the content must be served over HTTPS, but requested an insecure XMLHttpRequest endpoint ''. This request has been blocked; the content must be served over HTTPS." } A: You don't need to parse the JSON response in an array. The JavaScript array is capable of taking any JSON response, so an object. var data = { "__type": "GeckodriverException", "name": "Mixed Content: The page
